

Primary care designed for women and children

From midnight fever checks to ongoing condition management, Pomelo gives your people timely access to real clinical care.

Persisting care gaps for women and children of women receive all recommended preventive care services for their age

7.8%

$260

billion lost-productivity cost of health problems among working-age adults and their families

Illness doesn't wait for a convenient time. Missed workdays pile up, and symptoms that get ignored turn into costly events.

Pomelo gives your population a longitudinal care team that diagnoses, treats, prescribes, and monitors, so small problems stay small.

Preventive care for women and children

Routine care

Screenings, sexual health education, and diagnostics by text and video. Care becomes an ongoing conversation, not an annual event.

Pediatrics (ages 1-18)

24/7 urgent care, plus management of the conditions that fall through the cracks: eczema, allergies, sleep, weight, and nutrition. We keep kids on track with well-child visits, immunizations, and developmental screenings.

Proactive condition management

Metabolic and heart health

Whole-person care for PMOS and hypertension, with GLP-1 and metformin management, dietitian support, and blood pressure and lipid oversight.

Thyroid and autoimmune

Routine labs and management for conditions like Hashimoto's, celiac disease, and more.

Migraines

Trigger identification, with both rescue and preventive treatment.

Integrated behavioral health

Universal screenings and licensed therapists who can prescribe, for anxiety, depression, and PMDD.

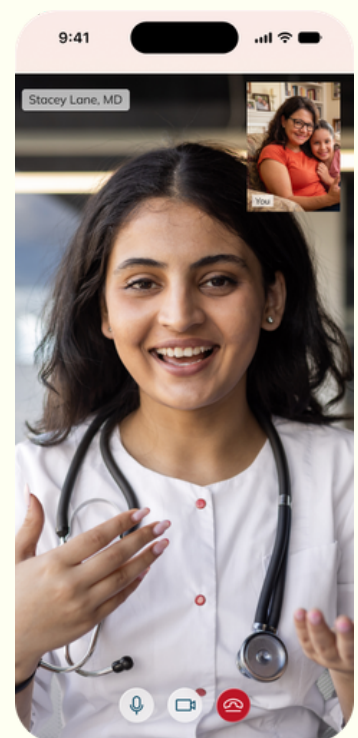

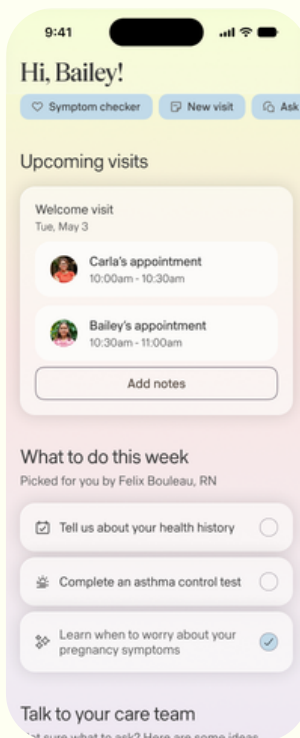

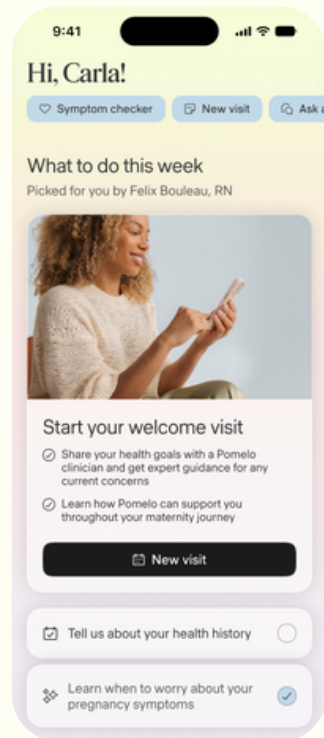

Prescribing and follow-up

We treat the whole person with prescription treatment when necessary and with continuous management.

One care team, not a series of handoffs

OB-GYNs, pediatricians, nurses, dietitians, and behavioral health clinicians work together in real time. One practice covers the acute and chronic needs of women and children, and catches issues early.

Pomelo patients can receive care via app, text, phone, and video appointments.

"The sign-up process was easy and streamlined. I was happy they accepted my insurance. I like that they promote and provided options for whole body and mind healthcare options."
